TO DESTROY GOPHERS.

Problem of Eradicating Pests Not a Simple One.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore.—"The problem of eradicating gophers, marmots and similar rodents is not a simple one," says A. L. Lovett, pest expert of the Oregon Agricultural College. "From experience, I believe it is necessary to practice a combination of treatments, rather than any single one."

"In most cases one will have very good success during the early part of the fight with the poisoned bait. Fumigation with carbon-bisulphide gives very good success in newly formed burrows of the pocket gopher. This method is used extensively through the middle west on a commercial scale and over large fields. Where the application fails it is usually due to the very extended underground burrows which occur in fields long infested."

"The carbon-bisulphide is used at the rate of three to six ounces to each pocket. Saturating dry horse manure and working this down into the burrow is a very good method of application. The material may be poured slowly into the hole direct. After treating the hole cover it thoroughly to hold in the fumes. Always bear in mind that carbon-bisulphide is as inflammable as gasoline. Do not open it near a hot stove, nor smoke while making the application."

"When the numbers of pests are considerably lessened they seem to become wary of such methods, and then possibly the trap will be about the only way that you can catch them. After the traps cease to be effective, a small boy with a rifle will usually keep them down pretty well. This pest usually appears above ground at certain hours of the day and can be shot very readily."

"There are two methods of preparing the poisoned bait. One consists of simply using pieces of carrot or potato or even raisins. Make an incision in each piece and slip in a crystal of strychnine sulphate. The burrow should not be left uncovered in the case of the pocket gopher; simply scrape away the surface soil to expose the tunnel; the bait may then be dropped into the hole and the soil replaced."

"In the case of moles, a sharp pointed stick may be pushed down into the uplifted earth around the tunnel and the bait dropped in. Then simply stamp on the burrow to cut out the light from below."

"The other method for preparing the bait with poison is as follows: 'Dissolve an ounce of strychnine sulphate in a pint of boiling water; add a pint of thick syrup and stir thoroughly. Scent this with a few drops of oil of anise. This mixture is sufficient to poison a half-bushel of wheat or corn. Simply pour it over the grain and stir vigorously. This grain of course should not be scattered in exposed places where birds and poultry would get at it."

"In the case of traps, I do not know that any particular make is to be recommended. All of them have certain things which make them, in the eyes of their manufacturers, a little superior to other types."

THE POLITICAL PROBLEM.

One Interpretation Would Make Sherman President.

Ashland, Ore., August 12. Editor Tidings: In your issue of July 29 there appeared an article entitled "Problem is Presented," in which the author sets forth some of the possibilities that may develop in the presidential race now commanding the attention of the reading public.

The author shows himself thoroughly conversant with matters political and I endorse the main portions of the article.

I take exception, however, to most of the following paragraph: "The vice-president chosen by the senate would thereupon become president. Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson alike losing out. This remarkable thing is therefore possible—that the running mate of the presidential candidate may become president next March. This elevates the candidates for vice-president this year to a new dignity."

The constitution provides that, if the electoral college fail to elect a president, it shall devolve upon the house of representatives, and, if that body fail to choose a president by the 4th of March next ensuing, then the vice-president shall become president the same as in case of death or other disability of the president.

I interpret this to mean that he who is serving as vice-president prior to the election would become president and not the vice-presidential candidate who might be chosen by the senate.

According to this interpretation, Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson would indeed each lose out; but Vice-President Sherman would become president and the person chosen by the senate to become vice-president would succeed Mr. Sherman as presiding officer of the senate.

L. C. Jaquette is one of the busiest men in Hornbrook. He is a liveryman and when he isn't talking he is having or doing any one of a dozen different things. Besides, he may be seen any time with his load of people, taking them where they wish to go.

Sunday of last week Ralf Hughes rode his motorcycle to Hills to see the ball game. During the afternoon he missed his machine. He wired to his father, the constable of Hornbrook, telling him of the loss and that the thief was headed south. Constable Hughes stationed his deputy, Joe Shults, at the forks of the road while he watched the town. The result was the bagging of two cycle thieves and the recovery of Ralf Hughes' machine and a tandem that had been stolen at Portland. The thieves were sent to Yreka and placed in custody of the sheriff.

Belmont School for Boys

BELMONT, CAL.

(25 miles south of San Francisco.)

Is trying, and we believe successfully trying, to do for the moral, intellectual and the physical welfare of its boys what thoughtful parents most wish to have done. Contributive to this end are the location of the school, removed from the temptations and distractions of town or city, the fineness of its climate, the excellence of its buildings and other equipment, and the beauty and extent of its grounds, with the wide range of foothills surrounding them. We are glad to have our patrons and graduates consulted. For catalogue and other specific information address the Head Master.
